
An irrefutable proof that there is very little that cannot be fixed with coffee, the kao rani mraz ceo film is a 2013 independent dramedy about a fictional movie studio and its struggle to find its next big script. The story follows the studio's five employees (representing screenwriters, directors, producers, and actors), each of whom has their own personal struggles. As they work together to save the company from going under, they also learn how to overcome their individual struggles — which makes for an interesting time at work when they are not trying to save the company but are instead learning how much each others' personal lives matter in achieving one's goals. The film was shot mostly in and around Toronto and its surrounding areas, and wrapped up in May 2013. The movie is a mixture of animation and live-action - the movie has 3D backgrounds as well as live humans, with pre-production backed by CG wire capture techniques to those scenes requiring those elements. The concept for the story came from a pitch made by Scarborough College student Jesse Hackett. The movie has been featured in two Toronto Film Festivals, one at Ryerson University and another at York University. The movie was created by Toronto-based filmmaker, Jesse Hackett. Cast includes: Written by Scarborough College student Jesse Hackett, the script for kao rani mraz ceo film came about when he was saying to his friend that since Hollywood is presently run by people in their 30's or 40's who are old enough to have kids - they are not only having the ideas but are the ones actually doing them - it would be great if there was a film which put forth a story idea where two teenage kids were having all these grand plans - plans that Hollywood wouldn't even think of. The film was shot with a $23,000 budget and with no previous filmmaking experience. The movie was shot using a variety of digital cameras and traditional film cameras. The movie has been featured in two Toronto Film Festivals: Kao Rani Mraz Cinema is the official company name of the film as well as the name of its web site and Facebook page. The name is intended to reflect that all employees at the fictional studio work for this company, not just those seen on screen.

The film has been selected as an Official Selection at: For training purposes, kao rani mraz ceo film utilizes robotic actors to make things look even more like actors acting. The concept behind the usage of the robotic actors is to get them used to filming on movie sets so that they can get used to it when they get jobs in Hollywood. The film is part of the FilmYourscreen program started by Regal Cinemas and Ryerson University, where it has been shown at various Regal Cinemas theaters throughout North America. The concept has been extended over into Canada, where the film will be screened at multiple locations throughout Canada in 2013, including York University and Ryerson University.
